YANKEES IN BAD STREAK
Lose Fourth Straight Game, This Time to the Senators.

JOHNSON STANDS IN WAY
One Base on Balls by Quinn Brings About Defeat of His Team.

With Walter Johnson, the speed king of the American League, in the box, and the team behind him playing sensational ball, the Washington Senators sent the Yankees down to their fourth straight defeat at American League Park, yesterday afternoon. The score was 1 to 0. The conquest of Wolverton's men came only after a bitter pitchers' battle, in which the Idaho speed marvel defeated Jack Quinn, who pitched brilliant ball, and with proper support on the part of his mates might have sent the battle into extra innings. A timely hit also might have counted heavily for Quinn, but it was a clear cut case of too much Johnson.

The first real day of baseball weather brought out a slightly larger crowd than the opening day, and those who remained away were the losers. Under the warm rays of the sun the athletes put forth their best efforts and play of the highest order was seen on a diamond which afforded firm, springy footing.

Eddie Foster, the gingery little third sacker of the Senators, played the most sensational ball that has been seen on the Hilltop in many moons. Foster was all over the field, roving around like a grim destroyer, and he reaped many a promising hit. His play far excellence was accomplished in the fifth inning when he raced far back into left field and pulled down a Texas leaguer from the bat of Earl Gardner that looked good for two bases. He made another startling display of speed and agility in the eighth frame when he dashed down almost to the home plate, and scooped a weak grounder from Gardner, shot the ball to Flynn in one motion and Earl was by a yard. Foster stopped kicking Gardner around long enough to get Wolter on a sure hit by pulling off a grand play on a sizzling grounder in the seventh inning. Moeller, the left fielder was in the limelight in the sixth inning when he backed up to the score-keeper to get a fly from Hal Chase's bat.

Johnson entered the box with everything that he ever showed in his life in the way of dazzling speed and sharply breaking curves. He struck out six men, but was a trifle shy on control. He passed four men and hit another. He ruled with an iron hand, however, and four batters were out in the ninth inning. Only once was the home plate threatened, and a white clad athlete got as far as third base. That was in the first inning, when Wolter sliced a double into far left field and went to third, while Daniels died at first. Everything was framed for a score, but the fates decreed otherwise. Johnson turned on every ounce of speed he had at Chase, and Hal tripped over the plate. Wolter's perfect throw to Al Smith beat Harry many feet. So it was that New York's first and last chance for victory went glimmering.

Quinn, while not as brilliant as his rival, pitched ball that will win many a game before the season is over. He allowed eight hits, struck out six men and issued only one pass. This pass, with a bad break in the luck, proved his undoing. There were two out in the ninth inning when Wolter sliced a double into far left field and went to third, while Daniels died at first. Everything was framed for a score, but the fates decreed otherwise. Johnson turned on every ounce of speed he had at Chase, and Hal tripped over the plate. Wolter's perfect throw to Al Smith beat Harry many feet. So it was that New York's first and last chance for victory went glimmering.

The umpires had their own troubles. Wolverton was ordered to stop for firing his vocabulary and opinion of umpiring in general. "Germany," Schaefer also incurred the displeasure of the official. In the third frame Al Smith was called out on a bunt which Schaefer thought was a foul. "Why," he cried to Connolly, "you're playing hockey from the bushes." "Well," replied Connolly, "you're playing hockey from the bench, and you'd better go back there and fast, too."

Schaefer's jokes from first base were missed, but he emitted many lusty roars from right field and his comedy made a hit with the "fans."

The score follows:

SUPERBAS TAKE A FALL

Find Phillie in a Batting Mood and Take the Count.

Against Such a Bulwark Bill Dahlen's Men Battled On, but in Vain.

Phyllis Barger, of Brooklyn, found the Phillies in a receptive batting mood upon renewing acquaintanceship with them at Washington Park yesterday afternoon. So warm and effusive was their greeting that Cy was simply overcome and forced to retire from four runs across the plate. Bill Dahlen then appointed one of his young brood of twirlers, Kent by name, as a reception committee, and before he could retire the visitors ran up a total of eight runs for the inning. Two more tallies for safe measure were added before the game was over, and in the mean time the Superbas were able to garner only six off the deliveries of Alexander and Moore; so it was generally conceded a defeat for Brooklyn.

By depositing eight runs in the bank right at the start of the game, on seven hits, three passes and an error, the Phillies had little to fear. Doolin started with Earl Moore in the box, thinking that the day was warm a fine opportunity was afforded to give the star pitcher a workout. Moore was not in the best of form, and while he allowed only two hits in the four innings he pitched, he passed four men and showed a general tendency to wildness. The Superbas bunched a couple of hits with an error and a sacrifice in the third frame and tallied three runs, to add to the lone tally made in the first, on a couple of passes, an error and an out.

For some reason or other Doolin did not see fit to let Moore twirl the entire game and appointed Alexander to mound duty for the last five frames. Although Smith punctured his delivery with a double in the fifth, Grover Cleveland forced the Superbas to give up club swinging exhibition in the sixth, when he struck out the side. He did not keep up this good work, however, and the Superbas got to him good and hard in the last inning, scoring two runs. He allowed only five hits, but most of these were bunched in the ninth.

Kent, who succeeded Barger, pitched sterling ball, after getting off to a bad start. He settled down to a steady pace in the second inning, and held the Phillies fairly well for the rest of the game. They succeeded in bunting three hits with a pass in the fifth and scoring a couple of runs, but for the rest of the time Kent did well. Nine hits were made off his delivery, but only two runs resulted therefrom, while he gave four passes and struck out four men.

Sensational fielding on the part of Moran, the Brooklyn right fielder, was one of the features of the game. The youngster made perfect throws to first and first to catch a fair sized crowd to tumults of applause. Both Parkert and Titus as well did some neat work on occasion.

The score follows:

| PHILADELPHIA | BROOKLYN |
|----------------------|-------------------|
| Knapp, 1b, 4.00 | Moran, 1b, 4.00 |
| Titus, 2b, 4.00 | Daubert, 2b, 5.12 |

GIANTS KEEP ON LOSING

Go Down Before Boston Even with Matty Pitching.

KLING MAKES A HOME RUN

Only Score Needed, but Braves Add Two More, Just for Good Measure.

[By Telegraph to The Tribune.]
Boston, April 15.—Johnny Kling and his Boston Braves defeated the New York Giants here today by a score of 3 to 0. Even Matty the Mighty had no terrors, and he let that Big Six in his first game of the season was outpitched by Perdue, who is only just beginning to look for a place in the baseball blue list. John M. Ward, once captain of the Giants, but now part owner of the Braves, took a lot of satisfaction in seeing his team, which finished last year ago, shut out the National League champions, who thereby suffered their third straight defeat.

With Merkle in New York, Rochester, out of his contract, McGraw was forced to shake up his men. He put Snodgrass on first in Merkle's regular place and sent Becker to shortstop, while Shafer continued at center field. Both teams played a snappy game in the field and there was not much difference in the hitting, but the Braves made nine safe drives to seven for the Giants, and, furthermore, made five of them count to good advantage.

On two occasions Mathewson had a chance to drive in runs and go long way, perhaps, to winning his own game, but he failed in the pitches. In the second inning Herzog and Meyers singled and were perched on first and second bases, respectively, with two out, when Matty fled to Sweeney at second base. Again, in the fourth inning, with Murray and the bases full on singles by Murray and Shafer, Campbell doubled over second base, stole third and raced home on another clean drive by Miller, who showed absolutely no respect for Matty's best curves.

Johnny Kling made his presence felt by picking out a ball to his liking and slugging it over the fence and far away for a home run. This happened in the seventh inning. In the chapter before the Braves scored their first run on a base on balls to Sweeney and a clean single by Miller. They added one more in the eighth, when Campbell doubled over second base, stole third and raced home on another clean drive by Miller, who showed absolutely no respect for Matty's best curves.

McGraw was not in a happy frame of mind to-night. What with the Giants losing three straight games, Merkle in New York, Fletcher with a bad knee and Matty being beaten on his first appearance in the box, there was reason for the dark frown on his face.

The score of the game follows:

| BOSTON | NEW YORK |
|----------------------|-------------------|
| Sweeney, 1b, 3.11 | Perdue, 1b, 4.00 |
| Miller, 2b, 4.00 | Daniels, 2b, 4.00 |

Barrow Sees Great Year for International League

Race Bound To Be Close and Hard Fought, Says the President.

"This is going to be the greatest season in the history of the International League," declared President Edward G. Barrow when seen at his offices in the St. James Building yesterday. He had just finished instructing his umpires on how to conduct themselves during the 1912 race, which begins on Thursday and promises to outshine all others in interest and closeness.

Mr. Barrow is enthusiastic over the prospects of his league for its first season under its new and high sounding title and advancement to a higher class. He expressed himself as confident that the changes at Providence, Jersey City and Newark had created renewed interest in those cities. He believes the clubs representing them to be fully 50 per cent stronger than last year and that the "fans" will show their appreciation by turning out record breaking crowds on opening day and throughout the season. He added:

"The attendance at Baltimore, Buffalo, Toledo and Rochester compares favorably with that of the big league cities at all times, and the interest in Montreal is growing stronger every year.

"The race is bound to be close and hard fought from start to finish. The spectacle of one club taking the lead and holding it up to the close of the season will not prevail this year, and the 'fans' will see to it that change hands many times before the season ends."

When asked what he thought of the newspaper article sent out from an American Association town proclaiming that organization to be stronger and paying bigger salaries, etc., President Barrow laughed and said the story was a joke. Continuing, he said:

"The International League is conceded by all baseball men to be stronger in every way than the American Association. We not only have more double the population, but we have larger and better plants in all of our cities. As to the relative playing strength of the two leagues, I will be generous enough to say that I consider them nearly equal in that respect, although we defeated them badly in the two interleague series that were played in 1905 and 1907. As to their claim regarding salaries, any well informed baseball man or player will tell you that we pay higher salaries than any other organization outside of the two majors.

President Barrow has assigned his umpires for the opening games as follows: Kelly and Howell at Newark, Murray and Matthews at Providence, Byron and Mullen at Baltimore and Guthrie and Doyle at Jersey City.

Mr. Barrow will attend the opening game at Providence.

up to the close of the season will not prevail this year, and the 'fans' will see to it that change hands many times before the season ends."

QUAKERS BEAT DARTMOUTH

Get Scare in Ninth Inning, but Imlay Goes to Rescue.

Philadelphia, April 15.—Bunching hits in the third and sixth innings, Pennsylvania defeated Dartmouth today by a score of 6 to 2. The Green Mountain collegians, however, gave the Red and Blue a bad scare in the ninth frame, when the bases were full, with no one out. Imlay rushed to the box to relieve Tidd and Dartmouth got only one run out of the rally.

Eckstrom pitched good ball up to the sixth, when the Quakers began to get free with his delivery, and Morey went in and held the Quakers safely.

Saunders started to pitch for Pennsylvania, but two innings were enough, and he was bunched in favor of Tidd, who worked well until he struck a wild streak in the ninth. The batting of Smith, Daley and Fahey and the fielding of both first basemen were features of the game.

The score follows:

more. The jinx of the team has been working overtime.

The anniversary of the opening of the thoroughbred racing season in this state, yesterday, did not pass without many keen regrets being expressed that the sound of the bugle was not heard.

Plans were developed yesterday at a meeting of the American Olympic committee for a countrywide campaign, in order to arouse more interest in the fund being raised to send a team to the games at Stockholm, Sweden, next July. The initial payment on the steamship Finland, which has been chartered for the athletes, was made yesterday.
